

Senate Approval Of Frieda Miller Expected Tonight

Republican Leaders Fear 'Political Boomerang' in Possible Democratic Charge of Confusing Department

Business Council

Revolt of Private Enterprise Meeting Called to Protest State Budget

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—Fear of a "political boomerang" drove Republican leaders of New York's senate today to demand immediate confirmation of Democratic Governor Lehman's appointment of Industrial Commissioner Frieda Miller.

Necessary senate approval, deferred a week ago, was predicted by one Republican leader for tonight's session despite opposition of some senators who sought further delay until after a legislative investigation of the unemployment insurance law under Miss Miller's administration.

"Should the Republican senate fail to confirm her appointment at once," the leader asserted, "the Democrats will have every reason to say that we are in a throng of confusion into the labor department."

Meanwhile, legislators returned to the capitol for opening of the session's seventh week amid these other developments:

Business Revolt

Summoning of business men throughout the state by the New York economic council for a "revolt of private enterprise meeting" to protest a $64,000,000 new tax program proposed in the state's record-breaking budget.

Scheduled introduction of a bill providing for speedy publication of administrative rules so arranged as to be "fringed with facility by lawyer or laymen."

Preparation by the legislative committee conducting an inquiry into the jobless insurance law for opening of public hearings as a step toward freeing the act from "the stifling tangle of red tape."

Pitcher Returns

Agitation in the senate for prompt action on Miss Miller's appointment followed return to Albany of Republican majority leader Perley A. Pitcher of Watertown who was ill when the smaller house of the legislature postponed confirmation.

Voicing disapproval of the delay, Pitcher declared he would seek to overcome objections of some senators to prompt action on the Miller appointment.

Mervin K. Hart of Utica, president of the New York economic council, asserted that the "revolt of private enterprise" meeting in Albany tomorrow would be attended by persons who desire "drastic reduction of public spending and revision or repeal of laws that tie private enterprise in knots."

Council officials said the way to business revival was to cut costs of relief, construction and government, repeal the little Wagner Act and "liquidate the frills in education."

At the same time, the New York State Bureau of Governmental Research maintained that the increase in the state's $411,632,122 budget could be attributed to "mandatory" expense chickens coming home to Albany to roost on increased state aid.

The bureau predicted a "huge protest" from taxpayers at the public hearing on the budget had been gradually over the years become mainly a supplementary budget for local government due to the increases in state aid.

Police Use Gas

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 13 (AP)—Police used tear gas today to disperse unruly crowds as a bomb blast signalled the spread of Monday disturbances to the Burmese capital. Two were wounded by the bomb which exploded while the House of Representatives discussed Mandalay riots in which 24 were killed Friday.

Lawyers Object

National Guild Opposes Any Amendment to NLRB at Present Session

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP)—The National Lawyers Guild was on record today as opposed to "any and all" amendments to the National Labor Relations Act at the present session of Congress.

Resolutions opposing any legislation affecting the law and approval of the National Labor Board's administration of the act were adopted by the guild, representing more than 4,300 members, at a general assembly of the third annual convention last night.

Many other resolutions, covering a wide variety of social and economic subjects were approved. Delegates today after electing Municipal Judge John Gutensch of Chicago as president to succeed Justice Ferdinand Pecora of New York Supreme Court. Mortimer Reimer of Washington was re-elected secretary.

Crowd Before St. Peter's Mourns Pope

Mourners outside St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome filled the 15-acre cathedral place as the body of Pope Pius XI lay in state there. A part of the vast crowd is shown in this picture telephoned from Rome to London and radioed to New York. The first of nine daily funeral services was conducted at St. Peter's Sunday. Burial will be in St. Peter's Wednesday.

Prince Chigi Arrives at Vatican To Enforce Rule of Secrecy

Rublee Resigns His Membership In Refugee Alliance

American Director Also Puts Before Committee Today Hitler's Truce Promise With Jewish People

London, Feb. 13 (AP)—George Rublee, American director of the intergovernmental refugee committee, placed his resignation from that position and Chancellor Hitler's promise of a conditional truce with the Jews before the committee today.

The resignation was accepted. It was understood, and a new director, not an American, appointed.

Rublee informed the committee that he had told President Roosevelt originally he could work only temporarily at the refugee office. His stay in London was extended because German government officials had delayed receiving him about proposals for the emigration of German Jews.

Rublee expected to sail for the United States at the end of the month. He is 70, a native of Madison, Wisconsin.

The committee met this morning in the London Museum and studied the Hitler refugee play which was understood to stipulate:

Jews would be permitted to return to their trade and industrial jobs from which they were ousted, until an emigration scheme is accepted or rejected by the committee.

Young, active Jews—estimated to number 150,000 of the nearly 700,000 Jews in Germany—would be given permission to emigrate provided they would arrange later to finance the emigration of patients and other relatives.

Older Jews would be guaranteed against further Nazi anti-Jewish legislation while the emigration scheme is in operation.

A trust fund would be created out of Jewish property in Germany on which emigrating Jews would be able to draw for passage and equipment and machinery needed in countries to which they were going.

The greatest barrier to acceptance of the plan was said to be the Nazi government's failure to guarantee the supply of foreign currency for emigrating Jews.

The suggestion was heard that the governments represented on the committee might float a loan large enough to pay most of the expenses of transporting and resettling refugees.

The committee was expected to try to negotiate further on the amount of money and personal property Jews would be permitted to take with them.

Appeal Made to FDR

Shanghai, Feb. 13 (AP)—Chinese reports today from Chengtu, Szechwan province, said United States missionaries there had appealed to President Roosevelt to put an embargo on exports of scrap iron, gasoline and war materials to Japan to "prevent the slaughter of innocent victims."

Religious Rioting

Cawnpore, India, Feb. 13 (AP)—Renewed religious rioting broke out today in demonstrations here because Hindus played music in front of a Mohammedan house. Thirty-five were wounded. Twenty were killed and 200 injured in battles with police yesterday.

Scion of Famous Italian Family Which Has Marshaled Papal Conclave Since 1712 Is Received by Cardinals—Archbishop Pisani Celebrates Mass Today

Vatican City, Feb. 13 (AP)—Thousands more passed the bier in St. Peter's Cathedral for a last view of Pius XI today as the congregation of cardinals began formal preparations for the conclave which will choose a new pope.

Foreign cardinals who will participate in the election continued to arrive and today the congregation received the man charged with enforcing the secrecy of their gathering, Prince Don Ludovico Chigi-Albani.

Prince Chigi acted at the election of Pius. Members of his family—as marshals of the papal conclave—have had the responsibility continuously since 1712.

Treasury Squares Its Tax Accounts

Overzealous Folk Get Checks From Government Because They Paid Too Much

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Overzealous taxpayers—or just plain careless ones—who squared their accounts with the Treasury last year emerged $34,529,774 to the good.

A Treasury report, released last night by Chairman Cochran (D-Mo.) of the House expenditures committee, showed that 159,233 individuals and corporations received that amount in tax refunds during the year ended last June 30.

Tallest refund, listed at $1,671,382, went to the Ohio Oil Co., of Findlay, O. Other large refunds were: Brown and Williamson Tobacco Co., of Louisville, Ky., and Petersburg, Va., $820,130; Estate of Henry E. Huntington, Los Angeles, $619,062; Proctor and Gamble Distributing Co., Cincinnati, $166,770.

The results resulted from several causes, Cochran said. Some people made mathematical mistakes, others reported non-taxable income, failed to take credit for foreign taxes or depreciation of physical properties. Some of the principal processing tax refunds represented repayments directed by law.

Several Hollywood actors profited. Marion Davies got back $5,027; Leslie and Ruth E. Howard, $1,141 each; Harold Lloyd, $1,009; Wesley Ruggles, $1,094; and Producer Louis B. Mayer, $4,734. Soila Henie, skating star, received $5,570; Bernard Baruch, New York financier, $2,921; and Irving Berlin, song writer, $11,130.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau got no refund, but his wife did. She got back $1,440.

Hexes, Voodoo and 'Evil Eye' Are Linked To Investigation of 3-State Poison Ring

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (AP)—Hexes, voodoo rites and mysteries of the "evil eye" were linked today to an investigation of a tri-state poison ring.

With four persons held on charges of plotting to murder for insurance, detectives familiar with Philadelphia's Latin quarter delved into the activities of a chunky little tailor they described as chief conspirator and a practitioner of witchcraft.

Cast in lead roles in this strange drama were the tailor, a convict nephew brought from Sing Sing prison to testify against his uncle, an informer who said he was beaten and bound after receiving anonymous threats, and four silent witnesses the exhumed bodies of persons authorities charge were victims of the poison plot.

Detective Sergeant Samuel Riccardi, heading a staff of investigators picked for their knowledge of South Philadelphia's polyglot population, promised disclosures he said would make the notorious "bluebeard" murders in France "pale into insignificance."

The tailor, Paul Petrillo, 45, was held without bail for grand jury action on charges of conspiracy to murder and soliciting to murder. His lawyer arranged a habeas corpus hearing for Wednesday.

Man Would Operate Schuwarzwaelder Plant

Samuel Chassy, counsel in the projected sale of the bankrupt town of Chichester, has announced that a hearing will be held Friday of this week in New York to consider an offer of Willis Rappleyea, Lexington business man, to operate the William Schwarzwaelder & Co. woodworking plant at Chichester for three months and indemnify any losses incurred. Chassy said all other bids so far have been unacceptable to the special master Peter B. Olney, Jr., and Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

The best bid for the plant so far has been one for $30,500 which has been rejected.

Insurgents Issue Blanket Decree Against 'Traitors'

October, 1934, Set as Deadline Applicable to Those in Conquered Territory Who Are Outside Limits

Burgos, Spain, Feb. 13 (AP)—A blanket decree providing exile or loss of citizenship for Spaniards deemed "traitors" before the civil war and anti-Franco political leaders after start of the war, was promulgated today by the insurgent regime.

On what he called the eve of the "total liberation of Spain" insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco selected the date of the unsuccessful October, 1934, Socialist rebellion in Asturias as the first deadline applicable to those in conquered territory who will be outside the pale.

Franco's decree also aimed at harmonizing the civil interests of the conquerors and the conquered. Insurgent authorities said the decree, called the "law of political responsibilities," was intended to protect the economic life of individuals, especially those who live in territory recently in government hands.

They said its intent was to assure such persons who were innocent of "subversive activities" against the insurgents the same civil rights as have been accorded the people of insurgent Spain.

Tribunals composed of representatives of the army, ministry of justice and Falange Española (Fascist Party) will determine to what extent political activities of persons newly incorporated in Franco Spain shall affect their civil rights.

Officials declared it was not a punitive law.

"Rather," it was said officially, "it is a law that will define the exact civil rights of all persons in Spain, giving to those who so merit full rights of Spanish citizens and taking certain rights from those who have been politically responsible for subversive movements and formation of political organizations opposed to Nationalist (insurgent) Spain."

Court Charges Violation

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—The supreme court decided today that a group of leading motion picture distributors and Texas exhibitors had violated the anti-trust law through film licensing agreements. In a decision by Justice Stone, the tribunal affirmed a decree by the Northern Texas federal district court enjoining further agreements. It was a 5 to 3 decision. Justices Roberts, McReynolds and Butler dissented, and Justice Frankfurter did not participate. Motion picture distributors involved were Columbia, Fox, Metro, Paramount, RKO, United Artists, Universal and Vitaphone.

Plane and Five Sought

Juneau, Alaska, Feb. 13 (AP)—A Marine Airways plane, with five persons aboard, which disappeared while fighting a storm on a flight from Ketchikan to Juneau, was sought today by land and air. Last word from the plane, a Fairchild pontoon ship, was received at 2:15 p. m. (PST) yesterday, when Pilot Lon Copo radioed he had encountered a storm off Grand Island in Taku Inlet, only a few miles from his destination. The plane left Ketchikan at 11 a. m.

Cracks Record

Literally that's just what Lieut. Ben Kelsey (above) of the U. S. Army did when he flew a new secret twin-motor army pursuit plane from March Field, Calif., to Mitchell Field, N. Y., where he crashed into a tree. The flight set a new flying-time record of 7 hours, 43 minutes.

Eight-Man Board Finds No Flaws

Crackup of Speediest Pursuit Plane Hinges on Possible Strain on Lieut. Kelsey

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Findings of an eight-man board of inquiry in the crack-up of the army's speediest new pursuit plane after a record transcontinental flight were in the hands of U. S. army authorities today in Washington.

Col. James Chaney, commanding officer of Mitchell Field, Long Island, where the twin-motored super-speedster crashed late Saturday after striking a tree, said army regulations prohibited publication of the report.

Col. Chaney said, however, technical defects were not to blame for the crash.

Raising the possibility that "man failure" was responsible, other officers at the field said that continuous flight at the phenomenal speed maintained by Lieut. Benjamin Kelsey was "enough to wear out an iron man."

The National Aeronautics Association clocked his dash from March Field, Calif., at seven hours, 45 minutes and 36 seconds. The association said his flying time of seven hours and 36 seconds was the lowest ever registered in a cross-country hop but that his two stops made his total elapsed time 17 minutes and 11 seconds longer than Howard Hughes' nonstop record of 1937.

Lieut. Kelsey suffered slight lacerations and shock when the plane clipped a tree as he was circling the field to land at 150 miles an hour. Officials said the all-steel cabin protected him from more serious injury.

After resting overnight, Kelsey flew to Wright Field, Dayton, O., his regular post, yesterday in another plane.

Democrats Look To Party Unity

New Deal Lieutenants Show Concern Over Blocking of Administration Acts

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—While Republicans celebrated Lincoln Day with greater jubilation than at any time in a decade, Democratic leaders in Congress were looking today for methods of uniting their forces.

The success of the Republican minority and dissident Democrats in bucking administration proposals has produced evidences of concern among New Deal lieutenants.

House Democrats will discuss the problem at a conference tomorrow. This will be preceded tonight by a meeting of about 40 House members, called by Rep. Voorhis (D-Calif.) to consider reviving the self-styled "liberal bloc" which suffered heavy casualties in the November election.

The immediate task of the Democratic leadership is to hold more votes on the floor through each day's session. During the first six weeks of this Congress the House Republicans, captained by stocky, hard-talking Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, have permitted few of their 169 seats to go empty, and with some exceptions their members have voted almost as a unit.

Such tactics enabled them recently to outvote the majority party, weakened by many absences, and trim an appropriation for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Previously they had contributed in both House and Senate the balance of votes necessary to slash $150,000,000 from President Roosevelt's proposed relief appropriation, although the reduction was initiated by economy-minded Democrats.

Mars Hill, N. C., Feb. 13 (AP)—Three workmen were killed instantly and five others injured seriously early today in a dynamite blast.

Hull Says Nation To Meet Attack With Resistance

Republicans Meet To Hear Speeches Praising Lincoln

Former President Hoover Will Address 1,500 Persons Tonight in New York; Woman Finds Hair

(By The Associated Press)
Republicans in many cities will have an eye on the 1940 presidential campaign tonight at dinners concluding a week-end observance of the 130th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth.

The largest gathering will be in New York, where 1,500 persons made reservations to hear speeches by former President Herbert Hoover, five Republican governors, and other party leaders. National Chairman John Hamilton said the keynote of the dinners was "Victory through unity in 1940."

Not all the tributes to the Civil War president, however, were of a political nature. Standing at Lincoln's tomb at Springfield, Ill., National Commander Stephen P. Chadwick of the American Legion said yesterday:

"The principles of Americanism prevered for us by Lincoln's statesmanship and success may some day come to be appreciated as is the life of Lincoln himself."

"From respect of our example, there may yet come the day when all nations will accept our way of life, when our ideals will lose their nationality and be accepted for what we truly and reverently believe them to be—the divine ideals for man's government and conduct toward his fellow man."

Secretary Wallace in a Lincoln Day speech in New York criticized the Nazi regime in Germany for teaching its youth to believe their race and nation superior. That is "pure scientific faking," Wallace said, adding:

"It is quite possible a master breeder who had a dictator's control for several generations would find he had produced a group of blonde Morlons—useful to him mainly as a superior type of cannon fodder."

Among the many memorial services yesterday was one at the Lincoln Shrine in Washington. President Roosevelt, unable to attend because of illness, sent a wreath by his naval aide.

Mrs. J. West Roosevelt of New York, widow of a cousin of President Theodore Roosevelt, said today a lock of Abraham Lincoln's hair had been found in a jewel box where it had lain hidden for almost 70 years.

The discovery was made, Mrs. Roosevelt said, when the jewel box in her family for 150 years was sent to a jeweler recently to be repaired.

Removing the lining, the jeweler found an envelope on which Mrs. Roosevelt's uncle, the late George Gibbs, had written: "Hair of President Lincoln, Good Friday, April 14, 1865." Inside the envelope were a few strands of dark brown hair, tinged with grey.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she believed the hair came into possession of the family through a friend, Dr. Joseph K. Barnes, Lincoln's surgeon general, who cut the president's hair at the time of his death on April 14, 1865. She said another lock of Lincoln's hair also was in the family's possession.

Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $2,494,122,338.32; expenditures, $5,533,061,609.73, including $1,862,471,935.39 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $2,038,939,271.44; gross debt, $39,733,653,568.08, an increase of $1,553,227.02 above the previous day; Gold assets, $14,747,047,905.25.

Big Crowd at Phoenixia

The second largest crowd of the season visited the Simpson Memorial Ski slope at Phoenixia Sunday and State Troopers found difficulty in handling the crowds. In addition to the local people and those who came by car the crowd was augmented by the crowd from the New York Central ski train. The train was a heavy one being operated over the Catskill Mountain Division by three locomotives. At the slope there was good skiing and the ski tow was swamped with customers.

Steven Nagy of East Kingston was arrested Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Charles McCullough. He was held at the county jail pending a hearing before Justice John Acker.

Secretary of State Gives His View as Prelude to First Congressional Debate Over Huge Arms Program

'Sacred Duty'

Hull Says It Is 'Sacred Duty' for Government to Have Adequate Forces

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—An assertion by Secretary Hull that America would meet any foreign challenge with "determined defense and resistance" served today as a prelude to the first congressional debate over the $552,000,000 armament program.

Hull told a radio audience last night that as long as there was any possibility of attack it was "the sacred duty of any government worthy of the name to maintain adequate defensive forces."

The definition of "adequate forces" will become an issue when the House takes up tomorrow a bill to authorize $300,000,000 for new army planes, $23,000,000 for Panama Canal defense, and $32,500,000 for civilian pilot training.

Although opponents admittedly held little hope of making important changes in the measure, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican floor leader, advocated spending the army's purchase of 3,000 new planes over three years instead of two.

Lengthening the program, he said, would prevent possible overstimulation of aircraft production. Furthermore, he declared, there is no immediate threat of war in which the United States might become involved.

Another phase of the controversy over the national defense and foreign policies came before the Senate military committee this morning. It faced the problem of deciding whether to make public an official, but edited, record of its inquiry into the proposed sale of American-made warplanes to France.

Foreign plane transactions brought from Senator Nye (R., N. D.) a charge last night that President Roosevelt's foreign policy was "as dangerous as to convince many that a war now in Europe would guarantee our participation in it."

In a radio debate with Senator Lee (D., Okla.), Nye pleaded for a "minor out-of-business" foreign policy "at least until that time when certain conditions should prevail."

Lee, who like Nye is a member of the Senate military committee, supported Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policies, asserting that the President had steered "a straight course toward peace" through one crisis after another.

Secretary Hull's speech, arranged by the New York World's Fair, said that as important as national defense is every country's obligation to prevent war "by perfecting the machinery of peace and by eliminating the causes of conflict."

To this end he recommended strict observance of international law, declaring:

"Our government seeks in every way to place our country's foreign relations on a basis of fair dealing and mutual benefit to all concerned and thus to promote the welfare of our citizens and to preserve peace for our nation."

House leaders hope to pass the army plane bill before the week-end, when President Roosevelt sails for the Caribbean to watch naval maneuvers. The fleet was ordered to leave Guantanamo, Cuba, today for a three-week of Panama Canal defenses. It is the first time in five years that the annual war games are being held on the Atlantic side of the canal.

Held as Slayer

Young Engineer Is Arrested in London in Death of Mayfair Playgirl

London, Feb. 13 (AP)—A young engineer with an Irish name faced a murder charge today after police discovered the stiletto-slashed body of a Mayfair playgirl in her luxurious flat.

Arthur James Mahoney, 23, was held for hearing on February 21 on a charge of killing the girl, Georgina Hoffman, 26, variously known as "The Black Butterfly," "The Girl in Red," and Mary Irish Heath, or Donnelly.

Charges against Mahoney were filed after long police questioning and discovery of a blood-stained shirt and knife in his Brixton home.

Scotland Yard men had investigated the possibility she had been killed as a betrayer of sabotage secrets of the Irish Republican army.

Youth and Age Err as Drivers

Middle-Aged Persons Most Reliable at Wheel, Yale Expert Finds

NEW HAVEN—Dr. Harry R. DeSilva, conducting a program of driver research at Yale's Institute of Human Relations, classifies youthful and elderly drivers as the most unreliable on the highways. "Most of our elderly motorists," he said, "learned to drive relatively late in life when their habits were rather inflexible. Elderly persons learn more slowly and when they have attained a minimum standard of skill are more likely to be satisfied with their own level. Many have never pushed on to the higher level of skill reached by present-day young people, so many of whom receive vigorous training followed by an examination."

"Add to this fact that elderly persons learned with old, noisy, slow cars with high seats and correspondingly easy visibility on congested highways, and one sees a reason for present-day maladjustments among our 'old-timers.'"

Youth Lacks Restraint.
Youths in their teens and early twenties, he finds, while more skillful, "have the greatest accident incidence." "They drive more rapidly and travel farther than older drivers. Having less experience and responsibilities (there are fewer car owners and fewer married men in the younger age group) they undoubtedly drive with less restraint and are more interested in getting places in a hurry. They have less insight into their own faults and into the possible defects of their cars. Since they are continually exploring new and unfamiliar roads they are less acquainted with the dangers that may confront them on the highway."

"Their ability to respond to complex situations and emergencies is not as good as it will be in later years. The chief redeeming virtue of young people is that they have keener ears, quicker reactions and a better co-ordination."

Drivers Past 50 Safer.
The middle-aged drivers, between the ages of 30 and 50, he said, "have more experience and more responsibilities and have a better accident rate despite the fact that they drive almost as fast and as far as the younger group. An outstanding paradox of middle-aged drivers is that during the period of fewest accidents (40-50 miles an hour) there is the greatest incidence of alcoholic drivers."

Dr. DeSilva suggested a "driver clinic" for elderly motorists. "Drivers, like sick men, can be cured best by helping themselves," he said. "When faced by objective facts old persons can carry out just as successful a self-improvement campaign as young persons."

"Although they may not themselves get into so many accidents, on account of their slower speeds, more leisurely habits of turning corners and more cautious operations at intersections, they may, by hindering the steady flow of traffic, cause others to have accidents."

'Date' Shyness at Toronto U. Now Lost to Students

TORONTO—The University of Toronto's four-year-old "date-time bureau" is in danger of death through "starvation," but editors of Varsity, undergraduates' newspaper, proposed to conduct a thorough survey to see if it can be rejuvenated.

The bureau, established four years ago, arranged dates for students of the university for the cost of 10 cents. Applicants were required to fill out a lengthy form paper, giving their preferences as to height, appearance, interests and social standing of their prospective dates.

The bureau enjoyed a boom until this year when interest suddenly died. Varsity editors, however, indignantly denied suggestions that campus romance was dead and put forward the suggestion that this year's undergraduates are either more bold in their efforts to arrange their own dates or have formed themselves into small "sets" in which they have their own friends.

Atlantic Mail Flights Will Begin Next Spring

LONDON—The long-awaited Anglo-American North Atlantic air mail service will begin next spring as soon as the ice-belted harbors of Newfoundland have thawed clear. In making the announcement the British air ministry revealed that the experimental crossings of the Atlantic by the new Imperial Airways Cabot flying boats, scheduled for this fall, were held up by the recent European crisis.

Nevertheless, Britain is well ahead of America with Atlantic preparations. While the first of a series of American flying boats big enough to cross the ocean with a worth-while mail load has just been completed, three of the eight new British Cabot flying boats will be ready this month.

The rest of the new British flying boats will be in the air by spring. In addition, two D. H. Albatross landplanes are now undergoing final tests, and it is expected they will also be ready for work by then.

Admiral Earle Dies

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 13 (AP)—Admiral Ralph Earle, 64, U. S. N., retired, president of Worcester Polytechnic Institute since 1925, collapsed this morning while addressing students in Sinclair Hall and died a short time later at his home, of a brain hemorrhage.

Gambler at Cards Is Most Superstitious of Persons

There is no more superstitious person than the gambler at cards. Where chance is a premium, the gambler seeks every means to attract to himself the forces of fortune and to ward off the imps of ill-luck. Should he drop a card to the floor all the cards will run against him; a crossed-eyed player at the table will be the sole winner; he that lends money to a fellow player will win, but he that borrows will lose. To sing while playing cards is to sing away one's luck; to walk round one's seat and then sit on a handkerchief is to invite good fortune.

The gruesome superstition, widely held at Monte Carlo, that all who sit down to play immediately after some unfortunate loser has committed suicide will win, stretches back to heathen days, when every disaster was supposed to be followed by a compensating piece of good fortune.

The Nine of Diamonds is called the Curse of Scotland, and no gambler from north of the Tweed likes to find this ill-omened card in his hand. One explanation is that it got its name from the fact that the order for the massacre of Glencoe was signed by the earl of Slair, whose family shield bore nine lozenges resembling diamonds.

Song Birds, Game Birds Fear Enemy of Air, Old Jim Crow

Song birds, game birds and waterfowl fear a black enemy of air—Jim Crow, the thief. No sportsman ever has spoken a good word for this bird. The farmer has no use for him. In fact, he doesn't seem to have a friend in the world.

But why all this murderous attack on old Jim Crow? Some persons believe he shouldn't be killed, for, after all, he is just one of nature's "bad boys" trying to get along. He has at least one useful habit, destroying cutworms, white grubs and grasshoppers. But even the persons who plead his case have no respect for him. He has been caught in the act of robbing the nests of birds and waterfowl in the nesting season, standing by and watching for his chance to destroy when mother bird or duck leave for drink or food. Jim Crow and his flock have been accused of following the great flights of ducks on the return to the breeding grounds of Canada, taking an "inventory" of all nests made, and later putting on an act of destruction.

Jim Crow's fate is in the hands of a "jury" of thousands of men. Each holds a shotgun. There are several kinds of obesity, each associated with a particular cause. The type can be determined by observation of how the fat is distributed on the body. There are three types caused by dysfunction of the endocrine gland and in each case the glands are functioning below the normal level. When the cause is in the pituitary gland there are heavy deposits of fat around the shoulders and pelvic girdles, the upper arms and legs will be heavily padded but the wrists and ankles will retain their trim outline. When the thyroid is at fault the fat is uniformly distributed all over the body, the wrists and ankles becoming thick. In hypogonadal obesity the fat is concentrated from the waist to the knees, the ankles and the upper part of the body retaining their slimmness.

The Fountain Pen

The fountain pen was invented three centuries ago. A letter describing a journey made to Paris in 1638 by two Dutchmen has been found at The Hague in Holland. In it they describe what must have been the first fountain pen ever used.

"We saw a man who had invented a most wonderful device the better thereby to write. He maketh nibs of silver and in the pen he placeth ink which doth not dry, so that without any trouble a man can cover half a sheet of paper without stopping. If the news of his invention were to spread he will soon become wealthy, for everyone will want one. We ourselves have ordered a few."

Dr. Mary Walker

Dr. Mary Walker distinguished herself by gallant and patriotic services during the Civil War. She was commissioned as first lieutenant to serve on the surgical staff of the army during the war and spent four years on the battlefield. At that time the attire of women was much more voluminous than at present and it simplified matters a great deal for Doctor Walker to wear men's clothes. Congress gave her the Congressional Medal of Honor and permission to wear her uniform.

Nests of Thoughts

Make yourself nests of pleasant thoughts! None of us yet know, for none of us have been taught in early youth, what fairy palaces we may build of beautiful thoughts, proof against all adversity; bright fancies, satisfied memories, noble histories, faithful sayings, treasure-houses of precious and restful thoughts, which care cannot disturb, nor pain make gloomy, nor poverty take away from us; houses built without hands, for our souls to live in.—John Ruskin.

Nomination Is Blocked

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Disputes over presidential judgeship appointments and the administration's foreign policy continued today in a legislative session shortened by adjournment in respect to Pope Pius XI. Senator King (D., Utah) blocked for the second time Senate confirmation of James V. Alfred to be a federal district judge in Texas.

Necessity Mothered the Footwear of the Old West

In the days when the West was being won the boots developed as a handy item for a man who spent a lot of time in the saddle. The 2-inch heel was designed to prevent the foot from slipping through the stirrup. If your foot slipped through the stirrup and your horse took a tumble you could be sure of a nasty fracture. The sharp toe was calculated to fit the foot snugly into the stirrup, says the Kansas City Star.

The 6 or 7-inch height of the uppers developed in much the same practical manner. They protected the horseman's ankle from chafing by the saddle gear, kept the ankles warm in chilly weather and also saved wear and tear on trousers.

The same practicality applied to the fancy stitching on the uppers. These elaborate designs were to prevent the soft uppers from collapsing around the wearer's instep. A pre-stiffened leather upper, it was discovered, was not comfortable enough. The high heel throws the weight of the body forward on the ball of the foot; the proper place for it. Most persons are inclined to stand or walk on their heels.

The heavy-heel shoe stance throws the body out of line and if you stand around that way long enough you end up with a pain in your legs or in your back.

The pointed toe does not, as you might think, cramp your foot because your toes don't extend all the way. They stop about two inches short of the "up" and have just as much room as they would have in regulation army brogans.

Quaalagh Is One of the Oldest of British Festivals

Quaalagh is seldom heard of in England, but is one of the oldest British festivals. It is observed in parts of the Isle of Man, where customs similar to "first-footing" in Scotland are kept up, says The Scots. Men go from house to house singing special festival songs, and are invited in for a bite and a drink. Always, dark men go first.

But there are one or two customs in connection with Quaalagh which are observed nowhere else. Before midnight the floor of the kitchen is swept, always starting at the door and sweeping to the hearth, otherwise good luck will be swept out. Before retiring, the ashes are taken from the fire and smoothed over the hearth with a pair of tongs, and in the morning the housewife looks eagerly at the ashes for tracks of a human foot. If there is one and the toes point to the door, it means death for one in the house; if the footprint is reversed, it means the birth of a child.

Sportsmen Have Language

Sportsmen have almost developed a language of their own in designating groups of particular animals and birds. For instance, observes the American Wildlife Institute, it would be high treason to refer to a bunch of partridges. One should always say a covey when referring to members of the partridge family. Then there is a nide of pheasants, a whisp of snipe, a flight of doves, a muster of peacocks, a sign of herons, a brood of grouse and a plump of wild fowl. Of course there is also always a stand of plovers, a sargle of geese, a bevy of quail, a cast of hawks, a skulk of foxes, a pack of wolves, a sleuth of bears and a gang of elk in the well-informed sportsman's dictionary.

Congress Pays Tribute to Pope

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Congress adjourned out of respect for Pope Pius today after both houses had adopted resolutions expressing sorrow and shock at his death.

Four senators paid tribute to the Pontiff in brief talks which preceded adjournment. Senator Wagner of New York, author of the Senate resolution, said the Pope had "achieved a position of influence and authority rarely attained by one in his office because of his untiring efforts in behalf of international peace and social justice."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky declared the Pope had made a great contribution "to the cause of world peace and world democracy." He added that "Plus 'abated' Fascism in his own country and Communism throughout the world, and was the author of numerous encyclicals which will be a permanent part of the history of his church and of the world."

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts said Senate adoption of the resolution was evidence of "tolerance and broadmindedness and good will." He described the Pope as "a great spiritual leader" who had worked always for justice and charity.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, said he wished to concur with the sentiments expressed by the three senators.

The brief House session opened with a prayer by Chaplain James Shera Montgomery.

About the Folks

John Buschering, barber of Mickey's barber shop, has returned home after spending a week in Pittsburgh.

Raymond J. Hess of 4 Smith avenue, member of the Junior Young Men's Club, is under treatment at the Kingston Hospital.

Mary Ann Harlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Harlow, of Grand street is convalescing nicely from an attack of pneumonia at the Benedictine Hospital.

Two Children Do Well

Pittsburgh, Feb. 13 (AP)—Two tiny girl survivors of quadruplets born to 29-year-old Mrs. Ralph Pennetti were reported in "really good condition" by hospital attendants today. The babies were born at five-minute intervals Saturday. The first, a boy, died at birth. The last of the four to arrive, another boy, lived 15 hours in an oxygen tent. The two girls, Geraldine and Bernadine—are identical twins. They cry lustily in their incubators. Physicians gave them a good chance to live.

Girdler Makes Prediction

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—The time might come, T. M. Girdler, the steel man predicted today, when the United States would gladly give all the gold in Kentucky vaults for a pile of desperately needed manganese and chromium. This "time," said the chairman of the Republic Steel Corporation, would be war, and the prediction was made in a speech to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Court Refuses Review

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Manny Strowl and six other men serving long prison terms in connection with the 1937 kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, Jr., of Albany, N. Y., failed today to get a Supreme Court review of their conviction. The court said their application "was not made within the time provided by law." The men, some of whom are serving sentences at Alcatraz, appealed from the second federal circuit court at New York. They are, besides Strowl who was the "intermediary" in the kidnaping, John J. Oley, Percy Geary, Charles Harrigan, John McGinnis, Thomas Dugan, and Harold Crowley.

INVENTION

Thomas Edison's birthday, February 11, is National Inventor's day, and the week is known, appropriately enough, as National Advancement Week. Nothing puts us ahead more than invention.

But this seems an appropriate time to remark that, in spite of all that new inventions have done for America, they are not putting us ahead so rapidly just now as they might. Our Connecticut Yankees, actual and spiritual, are still inventing new devices, but it usually takes a long time to get them into productive operation. There is plenty of argument about it as inventors and researchers talk it over.

Some reformers may be going too far in their efforts to force useful inventions into production. But a patent lawyer of long experience says there is sense in such a suggestion. The 17-year period allowed an owner only starts, he explains, when the actual use of the patent begins. Thus a patent for something of great value to society may be held out of use many years.

He would shorten not the 17 years, but the time an owner may delay using his patent monopoly. That seems fair enough.

ITALY IN SPAIN

The Fascist devil in the Spanish woodpile begins to emerge, as the Spanish crisis approaches a climax. Virginia Gayda, prominent Italian editor and government spokesman, now suggests that the Italian troops in Spain may remain there when the rebel forces under Franco have occupied the whole country. "To military victory, complete political victory must be added. Therefore Italian legionnaires will not abandon Spanish territory until it shall have been purged completely of Red armies and associated corrosive attempts of their friends."

That last condition might be easily interpreted to give Mussolini indefinite tenure in Spain, as a sort of overlord of France.

The announcement is reported from London as "ringing ominously in Britain." It rings no less ominously in France. Those two associated powers are probably regretting now that they let the intruding Fascist and Nazi dictators go so far in their depredations next door.

The German forces there, considerably less than the Italians, may leave without much trouble, but it will take a surgical operation to get the Italian army out. Italy will continue making trouble for France and Britain in that quarter.

WHY NOT CHOOSE PEACE?

The Great Wall of China, which offered no barrier to Japanese invasion, was long supposed to have protected China from other enemies. Yet even in the days of the Great Wall's strength, barbarians used to break through and it was necessary to push them out again by warfare.

One of the Han emperors thought about this and decided to try a new kind of defense. He wrote a letter to the barbarians. It is amazingly timely and rates thoughtful study today. There was, he said, no good reason for the two peoples to fight each other. It would be much better for both if they maintained peace. He sent them large gifts of food because the climate to the north was harsher than that south of the Great Wall. He promised to follow up the food with clothing and other useful things.

"Now we are at peace," he said. "Let us stay at peace. Heaven does not cover just one person, or the people of only one country. It covers all of us. The earth is the common resting place of men. Let us forget any little quarrels which may arise, and go on as friends."

Perhaps it didn't work any better than such an appeal would work today. But it spoke truth and wisdom.

GERMAN FREEDOM

Another interesting sign of the times is the abandonment of the "Freedom Pavilion" planned for the New York Fair. It was being sponsored by Mayor La Guardia and various educators, business leaders and public men, including Al Smith, Owen D. Young and Nicholas Murray Butler.

The structure was to be dedicated to "Germany Yesterday and Germany Tomorrow."

It was designed to represent German culture, science and art preceding the Nazi regime, and the revival expected to follow the Nazis when they disappear.

Naturally such an exhibit would have attracted wide attention, and just as naturally it would have greatly offended the Nazi government. It is probably wise to give up the enterprise.

Nothing is lost in doing so. The facts for which such spectacular publicity was sought are coming to light in a hundred natural ways, seen more clearly right along by intelligent men and women in Germany and throughout the world.

Germany will be free again and recover from this slip toward barbarism, under a group of revolutionists knowing and caring nothing about Germany's noble past. But it will be a hard climb back, against the resistance of a new generation brought up to scorn the things that made Germany great.

We Americans may be dumb about international affairs, and are not too bright about envisaging ideological eventualities, but we know who our friends are.

A doctor says an average head cold costs $15. Now can some bright victim figure out how much that means per sneeze?

There seems to be some question as to just where our Maginot Line is, but it's probably in the munition factory belt.

We Americans take our sports more seriously than other races take their regular work.

There is said to be a shortage of alarm clocks in Russia. There is also a shortage of things worth waking up for.

 TREATMENT OF DRY CATARRH

We were taught as students that when catarrh developed past the moist or mucous stage and finally reached the 'dry' stage, there was nothing much could be done to stimulate the lining or mucous membrane of the nose into renewed life. As this dry form often gives a 'vacant' appearance to the face and is accompanied by a bad breath, many of these patients develop an inferiority complex. While the use of certain solutions and oils gives temporary relief, most forms of treatment have been unsuccessful.

A couple of years ago I spoke of a form of treatment outlined by Dr. C. K. Gale, New York City in "Archives of Physical Therapy, X-ray, Radium," Chicago.

Dr. Gale's method of treatment of ozena—the dry form of catarrh—consists of the direct application of heat to a large surface of the lining or mucous membrane of the nose for prolonged periods. Into the right nostril a rubber applicator of special design is placed which has been filled with hot water so that it can be kept by the use of the X-ray. It extends the entire length of the nose to the back of the throat and upward beyond the level of the middle of the three turbinates bones. When this rubber bag or tube is blown up it touches the middle and outer wall of the nose. If instead of hot water the applicator is filled with a heated solution, a heat effect by direct contact over the whole surface touched by the bag will be obtained. Success is first applied which collapses the rubber applicator and the applicator is then filled completely with the heated solution. The applicator is made of very thin but strong rubber and when inserted into the nose has the appearance and thinness of a jack knife blade. It has no shape but takes the shape its ballooning action makes in the nose. The temperature of the solution is raised to 125 degrees Fahrenheit.

Dr. Gale treated four cases showing the 'classic' signs and symptoms of dry catarrh—drying up of mucous membrane, crusts, and the very disagreeable odor. Within a week the crusts became reduced, the odor disappeared, and the patients were markedly improved.

I am speaking again of this method as sufferers from the dry form of catarrh are so often discouraged and ashamed of their affliction.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Mission Circle Names Officers

Highland, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Clarence W. Rathgeb was re-elected president of the Mission Circle at the meeting held Wednesday at the Presbyterian manse with Mrs. D. S. Haynes and Mrs. F. D. Randall as hostesses. Associated with Mrs. Rathgeb is Mrs. Edward Griffin, first vice president; Mrs. George Hildebrand, second vice president; Miss Eliza Raymond, secretary; Miss Fred Lewis Vail, treasurer; Miss Laura Harcourt, secretary of literature; Miss A. W. Lent, secretary of Missionary Education; Mrs. Haynes, secretary of spiritual life and stewardship; Miss Julia Van Keuren, secretary of membership; Mrs. A. W. Williams, secretary of peace and temperance; Mrs. W. D. Corwin, secretary of sewing; Mrs. Edgar Boyce, secretary of young people's work.

Members and guests met in the morning for the hemming of 15 sheets which with eight dozen bandages go for hospital use in China and six bed spreads and 100 gauze dressings are sent to the hospital in Porto Rico. At noon the hostesses served luncheon and in the afternoon Mrs. A. W. Lent gave a most interesting talk on India. It was announced that the Missionary Society of the Methodist Church would lead in the World Day of Prayer, February 24. It was also stated that the meeting of Ulster County Council of Churches would hold the winter meeting in the Presbyterian Church on March 3. The Rev. Russell Branson of Clintonville is president and had asked that a supper be served at 6:30 o'clock to approximately 100 persons. A letter was read from Mrs. John M. Hackett calling attention to an executive meeting at her home in Poughkeepsie on February 28 and the Presbyterian meeting in Kingston on April 13.

Mrs. A. W. Williams extended an invitation for she and Miss Van Keuren to another luncheon meeting at their home on March 3. Attending Wednesday was Mrs. Rathgeb, Mrs. Lent, Mrs. W. D. Corwin, Mrs. Rachel Rowley, Mrs. Lester Simpson, Mrs. Gideon Tompkins, Mrs. Jennie Abrams, Mrs. Helen D. Brown, Misses Laura Harcourt, Eliza Raymond, Julia Van Keuren, Mrs. F. L. W. C. T. U. Meets

Highland, Feb. 11.—The Frances E. Willard meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held Thursday afternoon with the president, Mrs. James R. Swift. The guest speaker was the county president, Mrs. Emma C. Carpenter, who took the life and work of Miss Willard as her subject. Mrs. Moses Teas conducted the devotional service. Mrs. Charles DuBois read the personal reminiscences of Dr. Ella A. Hoole in her acquaintance and work with Miss Willard. Mrs. Swift presented the 19 present with pictures of Miss Willard. Each member now has a kimono-shaped bag in which to place coins which will be added to the alcohol education fund. It was announced that Robert Marriott will be here in the near future to speak. He was scheduled for last month but illness prevented his coming. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Charles DuBois and the Union Signal program is in charge of Mrs. Victor Clearwater. One new member, Miss Elizabeth Rhodes, was received. Present were Mrs. Swift, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Helen D. Brown, Mrs. Du-Bois, Mrs. Amelia Dickinson, Mrs. George Cornell, Mrs. Fred Willsey, Mrs. J. R. Mellus, Mrs. Joel Smedes, Mrs. Teas, Mrs. S. A. McCormack and daughter, Elleen, Mrs. Harry Maynard, Mrs. William Burnett, Mrs. Walter Constable, Misses Ada Van Nostrand, Edith Dickinson, Elizabeth Rhodes and Belle Brinckerhoff. The hostess served fruit punch and cakes.

Ladies Meet

Highland, Feb. 11.—The officers-elect of the Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Elton Tompkins Thursday afternoon and arranged the committees for the work of the year and for the various events. At the meeting were the president-elect, Mrs. W. D. Corwin; Mrs. A. W. Williams, treasurer; and Mrs. Harry Colyer; Mrs. Gideon Tompkins, Mrs. M. P. Busch, Mrs. C. D. Farnham, Mrs. N. D. YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 13 Deduction for Professional Expenses

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession. These include the cost of supplies used in his practice, office rent, cost of light, water, fuel, telephone in his office, the hire of office assistants, and expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile, based upon the proportion of time it is used in making professional calls or for other professional purposes.

Many physicians use their residences both as their offices and their homes. In such instance the physician may deduct as a business expense the rental value of the rooms occupied for office purposes if he actually pays rent, and also the cost of light and heat furnished these rooms. Also, he may deduct a portion of the wages paid domestic servants whose time is partly occupied in caring for these rooms. Membership dues in professional societies are deductible. Physicians and dentists who keep in their waiting rooms current magazines and newspapers for the benefit of their patients may deduct this item as a business expense. The cost of professional journals for the taxpayer's own use is also a deductible item.

The cost of technical books is not a deductible item, being a capital expenditure, but a proportionate amount for each year's depreciation of the books may be deducted. Depreciation may also be taken on office furniture and equipment. Insurance premiums on office or other professional equipment and liability insurance paid for automobile liability insurance should be apportioned and that part of the premium attributable to business may be deducted as a business expense.

Louis Gruener, a skit, "The Hottest Egg Man—or You Can't Always Believe What You Hear," with Earl Kisor taking the part of Farmer Perkins, Beatrice Schreiber as Mrs. Hawley and Mrs. Mabel Schneider as the Jinks, the maid, reading, "The Grange," Mrs. Charlotte Shaw. A game party at the Grange Hall on February 22 was announced and on Thursday evening the dartball players went to Rosendale for their games. There were 80 persons present and refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. J. Van Vleet, Miss Charlotte Shaw and Miss Doris Schneider.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy Cook entertained the Mid-Hudson Philatelic Society Tuesday evening, and owing to many of the members suffering from colds the attendance was small. Miss Margaret Cook presided at the business meeting and the program was arranged by Miss Margaret Smith. The others present were Mr. and Mrs. Eber Smith. Refreshments were served by the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Decker drove to Whitestone, L. I., for the week-end and were accompanied as far as Brooklyn by the former's mother and sister, Mrs. Uriah Decker and Mrs. Lloyd Plass.

A colonial tea is held by Chapter A. P. E. O. Sisterhood, on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph Preston, who is assisted by Mrs. LeGrand Hartland, Jr. The program on Women of America is being arranged by Mrs. Howard E. Wilcox.

Roosevelt's Silence on Third Term Has Raised Questions Which Are Worth Considering at This Time

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, Feb. 13.—When, less than twenty days from now, March 4 arrives, it will be exactly six years since President Roosevelt entered the White House.

On the fourth anniversary of his taking the oath, President Coolidge made public his famous "I-do-not-choose-to-run" statement.

Will Mr. Roosevelt issue any such statement on March 4 about a third term?

So far as anybody knows, the President has not confided his intentions to a single soul. This very silence has raised questions and produced inferences which are worth examining at this time, because, to a peculiar extent, the so-called ambitions of the President with respect to a third term are said to be coloring his views on war and peace, and on legislative issues inside the Democratic party. People are saying that, if Mr. Roosevelt would only renounce a third term, his foreign policy would meet with more trust and approval, though they forget that Cordell Hull, secretary of state, has been and is making America's foreign policy.

There are supposedly only two assumptions possible—one, that Mr. Roosevelt wants a third term and will directly or indirectly influence his own renomination, and the other is that he does not want the nomination, will discourage his friends from nominating him, and will, in short, refuse to accept a third nomination.

Quite generally in the political realm, it is being assumed that Mr. Roosevelt's silence is related to the first of these two courses and that he did not want a third term, he would say so now and eliminate himself from all consideration.

But the experience which President Coolidge had with his own renunciation statement rather points to the probability that, even if Mr. Roosevelt intends to refuse a third nomination, he would be making a serious error to say so privately or publicly a moment sooner than such a statement, namely on the eve of the national convention in June, 1940.

To put it another way, it is to Mr. Roosevelt's advantage to say nothing for a year or more about a third term, even if he has determined in his own mind not to accept a nomination. This is because of the situation existing throughout the federal government among the Roosevelt supporters, in regard to the legislative problems before congress as well as to the cause of liberalism in which Mr. Roosevelt is so deeply interested.

The best way to understand the political dangers of an anti-third term statement at this time is to imagine that, on March 4 of this year, Mr. Roosevelt will use the words of Mr. Coolidge and say, "I do not choose to run for the presidency in 1940."

It will be recalled that, for a while in 1927, such a statement, as accepted as sincere because President Coolidge was known as a man who held definite positions and stuck to them, in a few weeks, the first "draft Coolidge" clubs were started, and, withstanding the appearance of other candidates in the field, there was a "draft Coolidge" movement right up to the eve of the Kansas City convention in June 1928, which nominated Herbert Hoover.

In other words, a president may renounce ambition, but he doesn't by any means and the matter, in the present instance, it would not dispose of the third term question at all. The Roosevelt friends, both in office and out of office, would insist on a "draft Roosevelt" movement. This would be quickly under way to protect persons in office and would gain momentum. There would be demands from the opposition that Mr. Roosevelt repudiate such movements and say the forceful words, "I shall not accept even if nominated."

But do even such statements close the door in politics? The "draft Roosevelt" leaders would look upon the statement, however worded, as a natural expression from a man who sincerely wants to dispose of the matter, but they would insist that he has really little to say about it, that the country and the cause of "liberalism" demanding reconsideration by his of his decision, and they would seek to confront him with a third nomination just the same.

From some points of view, the strategy of the draft Roosevelt group would be assigned to keep Roosevelt supporters together till the last minute so they could at the proper time throw their strength to a true "liberal," that is to a man Mr. Roosevelt himself would favor. Certainly, a cohesive group of pro-Roosevelt men can have a lot to say about the type of candidate who shall have the next nomination of the Democratic party. The longer the President keeps silence, the greater help he can be to such groups.

From Mr. Roosevelt's standpoint, the fate of all the liberal measures which he has espoused depends on the kind of candidate nominated by his own party in 1940, and if it should appear that a "reactionary" Democrat is on the way toward winning the nomination when June, 1940, rolls around, the demand to have Mr. Roosevelt reconsider any definite refusal he may have made before would take on the aspect of a "liberal" crusade. The President would be told that personal considerations or even explicit previous statements about a third term which he might have made should be brushed aside. Roosevelt supporters like Secretary Ickes and Senator Norris of Nebraska, already have intimated publicly that the President might be compelled to run for a third term to save "liberalism" in America. To hold the Roosevelt group together inside the Democratic party, the wisest strategy concededly is to leave the question of Mr. Roosevelt's ambitions open as long as possible, even to convention time in June, 1940. And it looks very much as if the ardent Roosevelt men would essay to keep it doubtful irrespective of what the President said or did in the meantime—for that's the practical side of factional politics on pre-convention campaigns.

HOME BUREAU

Modena Unit
 Twenty-one members of the Modena Home Bureau unit Wednesday attended a demonstration on "Meat Selection and Cooking" and later enjoyed a meal prepared under the direction of Mrs. Frank Black and Mrs. Orville Seymour at Mrs. Myron Coons' home near Plattkill.

The correct method of carving was demonstrated by Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Werner Pasberg. The approved manner of serving was also shown. During the pre-visited by Miss Everette Parsons, home demonstration agent, Kingston, who outlined important points on the origin, proposed development, maintenance of the Home Bureau organization. Suggestions for the planning of the program for the present year were made. Some of the suggested projects were Social games, adolescent physiology, housing, lighting, remodeling garments. Those desired in continuance were meal planning, sewing, understanding.

The next meeting of the unit is scheduled for Wednesday, February 22, when the annual election of officers will be held. The nominating committee appointed includes Mrs. Orville Seymour, Modena, chairman; Mrs. Harry Sutton, Clintonville and Mrs. Eber Coy, Ardona. The card party which was to be held at the Eber Coy's on Monday evening February 13, has been postponed to Tuesday evening, February 21.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Philip Baker, Mrs. William Bahret, Mrs. Walter Barnard, Mrs. Winfield Jenkins, Mrs. Werner Pasberg, Mrs. Harry Sutton, of Clintonville; Mrs. Edward Fischer, Mrs. Ira Hyatt, Mrs. Gerahom Mount, Mrs. George Alhusen, of Ardona; Mrs. Lester Arnold, Mrs. Joseph Hasbrouck, Miss Glennie Wager, Mrs. Frank Black, Mrs. Orville Seymour, Mrs. Christian Matheson, of Modena; Mrs. M. Augusta Johnston, Mrs. J. Agnew, Mrs. Myron Coons, of Plattkill.

Announcement was made that the public health meeting, of which the Home Bureau was a co-operating organization, was postponed until later. Miss Mildred Plass, public health nurse is to be in charge. A large attendance at the card party was requested.

A meeting which will receive considerable attention is that slated for Tuesday, February 23, when Mrs. Herrick will hold forth at Mrs. Hasbrouck's home.

Grange Has Gold Bible

Batavia, N. Y.—Genesee County's Pomona Grange has a new gold engraved bible, signifying its rank as No. 1 for achievement in New York state. New York Grange officials ranked Genesee first among the 63 Pomona Granges in 1938 for outstanding work in all phases of the Grange program.

Last night the neighbors had their radio going too loudly. Someone called up and asked them to turn it off. "If you don't like it, why don't you move to another part of town?" the neighbor lady wanted to know. To which the complainant replied: "Lady, we do live in another part of town."

Mother—Junior was it a bad accident when you and the other boy ran into each other on your bicycles?

Junior—Well, he was knocked speechless and my bicycle was knocked speechless.

More and more dogs. It seems everybody wants a dog. Maybe it's a pathetic craving for friendship that sends myriads of men and women out to own one of these affectionate four-footed companions.

La-dlori—I'm raising your next month, Mr. Stutcher.

Mr. Stutcher—Oh, I'm so glad to hear that, for I don't see how on earth I'll be able to raise it myself.

Mr. Robinson—These new fashions are absolutely freakish. Every time I look at that new hat of yours it makes me laugh.

Mrs. Robinson—That's splendid, darling. I'll hang it up where you can see it when the bill arrives.

Men — Women — Smokes
Bad men want their women
To be like cigarettes.
Just so many,
All slender and trim
In a case,
Waiting in a row
To be selected.
Set a flame—and—
When their flame has died—
Discarded.

More fastidious men
Prefer women like cigars.
These are more exclusive.
Look better.
And last longer.
If the brand is good.
They are not given away.

Good men treat women
Like pipes
And become more attached to them
The older they become!
When the flame is burned out.
They still look after them.
Knock them gently
(And lovingly)
And care for them always—
No man shares his pipe.

Clerk (at marriage license bureau)—Sorry madam, but licenses are only issued when your form is filled out properly.

Girl—Why, I like your nerve!
We can get married no matter what I look like!

In case anyone is interested.
General Washington was convicted of unlawfully possessing intoxicating liquor in dry area for purpose of sale, but conviction was reversed in Washington v. State, 133 Tex. Cr. R. 642, 113 S. W. 2d 917.

Friend—Is your husband's studio prospering?

Young Bride—Indeed, it is. He must be making lots of money, for he told me last night that they had to appoint a receiver to assist him.

Flashes of Life

Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Hot Rain

St. Joseph, Mo.—"I believe it's raining," said Mrs. Ed Whitten. "I can hear it on the roof."

Her husband looked out the window, saw sparks. The crackling sound on the roof was fire. The Whittens barely had time to get out without any of their possessions.

Wolf At Door

Greenfield, Mo.—Neighborhood dogs drove a wolf to Jack Lowry's door. Lowry killed it with a bent paddle and collected $5 bounty.

Snow-Ball

Peace Valley, Mo.—It was a new high in basketball enthusiasm when Peace Valley and Dora high schools played an entire basketball game during a snowfall. Peace Valley won 30-13 on the outdoor court.

Locked Late

Dallas, Feb. 13 (AP)—Albert Lock didn't find out until later he had locked his chickenhouse after his hens were stolen.

Lock nailed a plank across the door—without a glance inside—and went to town.

When he returned he found the building, plank intact, empty, he told police.

Coach Finds A Way

Ablene, Kas.—Coach Grant Spence has a way to make his Garfield High School basketball team score. He gives the boys chewing gum at the start of the game but makes them return it if they aren't ahead at the half.

Puddle Duck Leaves

"I MUST be leaving right away," Miss Puddle Duck told Mrs. Quacker, and she picked up her webbed feet and then flew a little but not very well or far. She hoped, however, she was out of sight so that they would have been impressed by her flying even that much.

"Of course I didn't mean to tell her to go," quacked Mrs. Quacker, "but I'm glad she took the hint."

"It was a pretty broad hint," quacked Mrs. Quacker, "but I'll say it was good duck riddance."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Quacker, "she is not for us. She wouldn't want to be a wild duck who flies miles and miles and settles in one place in the winter and another in the early summer, and she wouldn't want to know the joy of always having a home, a place to love and one in which to feel happy at all times."

"She put on airs and I didn't think she was a bit polite to you," quacked Mrs. Quacker.

"I agree with you," quacked Mrs. Quacker, "and I didn't like the way she spoke to you. We are so different. We never want to see her again."

"Of course we do," quacked Mrs. Quacker. It was time for her to leave and as she rode off Sweet Face smiled to himself, for he knew that both Mrs. Quacker and Mrs. Quacker had believed what they had said and yet how often they had shown off, and even quarreled.

And as he carried Mrs. Quacker away she waved a wing yet another time and shouted:

DANGEROUS SERVICE

BY GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters

Peter Mallone: Adventurous correspondent for the London News.
Petronella: His young, loyal sister.

Yesterday, James seems to be interested in Tamara back in England, but Petrel decides to go on with Peter.

Chapter 23
Alexandria

AST Christmas in Bucharest, this Christmas in Alexandria, next Christmas—where? Peter wondered. He looked through the window at his side, at the dazzling silver of a wing, against the incredible blueness of the Mediterranean Sea. Across the sparkling surface, the shadow of the plane seemed to move slowly. Now, ahead, and below them, Peter saw land; a great well of it, looming up and going on and on. Africa. Hot, misty, and flat, it looked, that coastline against its blue setting.

He turned to Petrel and pointed. She smiled, nodded. She was looking fit these days, his sister. He didn't wonder that she was becoming quite well known; that people made a fuss over her; that they were invited to spend Christmas in Alexandria, moving in it. The famous diplomat, the one with a round of gaily planned for them. He could sympathize with Mike for being crazy about her. Petrel's skin was a warm, golden brown; her clear gray eyes seemed blue because of the gay twist of the blue scarf she had bought in Rome. It was incredible to recall how young, and plain, he had seen her look sometimes. On long train journeys, from one side of Europe to another, when, in obedience to a wire from Rowdon, they had left at a few hours notice. In the gray dawn of that morning, in Kharkov, when he had found her waiting up for him, with that urgent message she dared not write. In those tenement buildings, the immense, dark, fortress-like Vienna, where the Schutzbandler had fought desperately. Where she had gone down to help the women and children, after the machine gun fire had ceased. It seemed extraordinary that Petronella was not yet twenty-one. Many experiences, and emergencies, had given her charm, assurance, and personality. She had seen a good deal for a girl of her age and type. He was glad they were calling this halt and holiday. He hoped (vainly, he feared) that she might agree to marry Michael. He could offer her a life for which she was excellently fitted.

"And I," thought Peter, "don't need her any more." He could not have done as well as he had without her. Special correspondent, instead of war correspondent, in two years he was not a bad start. But he had learned his job, he considered. He did not need restraining continually, as he had done at first. The intense excitement of youth were dying. But the thought of typing and checking up on all his own stuff appalled him. He had left so much of that kind of thing to her. It was time he stopped leaving so many gaps, for verification, figures, and dates, and painstakingly filled in while he rushed on to something new.

Separation was bound to come some time. He'd assure her again of the foolishness of her persistence about Tony Lance. She had not heard a word from the man since he left her those roses in Moscow. They had missed being in England at the same time by two weeks. Now he was in Abyssinia. And rightly so, thought Peter, who had come from Rome. He was likely to remain there for some time. From Petrel's point of view, Tony Lance, continually engaged upon "confidential" government service, was a bad bet, and it was time the poor sweet realized it. She ought to be more like Mari-gold. She had not wasted much youth waiting for him. She had had her share of love. She was good-father to her little Jeremy, Peter, who had cut two teeth.

There's Mike! The place was banking. They were coming down. Below them the tall white buildings of Alexandria looked like toys. There were two gray ships of the British Navy lying at anchor in the blue harbor, a cruiser and a battleship. There was a cluster of little boats round them. A naval pinnace, its ensign fluttering, spray flying, was speeding shoreward. It left a trail of white wake behind. Now they were going to land on the dried green landing ground of the modern airport. They could smell the earth and the grass. They held the arms of their chairs for the moment of impact. Their pilot made a perfect three-point landing.

"There's Mike come to meet us!" "Hello, Mike!" The young man in a palm beach suit came striding toward them. He helped Petrel to alight, and kissed her firmly on the lips.

"Might as well begin as I intend to go on. You're looking marvelous. Hello, Peter. You old dog. How are you both? They'll take great care of the customs. It was great to hear of a desert from your infernal snoring. Come, I've been as good as a lunatic ever since I got your wire."

"We couldn't have done it if your sister hadn't lent her flat," Petronella thanked him. "I've been filling the woman's page of the News with travel talk lately. Peter said I'd need some new clothes, so we're still pretty broke!"

"You'll need them! You're going to dance and go places till you cry for mercy. In case you don't know it, the social life here at Christmas is strenuous going. The English Colony give parties, the Greek Colony throw Arabian nights' junketings. The French Colony entertain, and the Maltese Colony invite—we can go to them all in turn, if it interests you. Those ships are in, as you saw. So everyone is entertaining, and being entertained by the Navy. There are four cocktail parties for you this evening, followed by dinner with me, then on to a Cabaret with the Corsellas. Remember them? After that, we dance till daybreak with the Popokousses. You wait! It will be some dance. If you've never been to a Greek party, you have lots to learn. They give the most amazing shows of all."

"Mike! Stop it! Peter and I have been living a quiet, orderly life in an Italian village. We'll never stand it." He laughed at her. He put a card into her hands.

"This is an invitation you'll have to answer formally—the Consulate at home. You won't be able to get food and drink to your mouth, there will be such a crush. But I want you to meet H. E., my boss."

"What is he like?" "Very tall, gray haired, and charming. I like him a lot. Marjorie told me to give you this." He handed her a letter. "Imagine it contains a few home truths about the servants, and tells you where to find the key of the cupboard."

Michael had a Consulate car and driver waiting outside the airport. Having passed customs and stowed luggage, they bumped their way along a bad road to the town, through the traffic of the suburbs and on to the Corniche.

"What a wonderful road!" "Yes—new during the last five years." They passed pleasant gardens and residential houses towards Raneleh, where his sister, married to a man in the cotton industry, habitually lived. She had gone home for Christmas to England.

Wasted Jealousy
"IS YOUR mother better?" "Oh yes, having succeeded in frightening Marjorie home in time to hang up her stocking, she's bobbed up as fresh as the first primrose. Dear old fraud! How were things with Mussolini, nice and peaceful?"

"As a firework before you light it," Peter grinned.

"The Italians aren't very popular here, at present. The French are scared stiff for their connections between Toulon and Algiers. I suppose they're talking war in Rome? It is pretty obvious, isn't it? And this Walwal incident is the beginning?"

"Inevitable. Petrel has met him. Ask her if she'd care to try to stop him getting anything he'd set his mind on."

Michael looked at Petronella's face and smiled. "I don't feel like discussing trouble just this minute. And if you ask me, Petrel has had enough of it, thanks to you. Your letters from Vienna last summer made me want to come and punch Peter's fat head for him, for having you there." He spoke in a tender, protective way.

"She laid a hand lightly on his arm in thanks."

"I wasn't sorry when I heard your friend, James, had broken his leg skiing, the first time he was there, and had to go home," Michael went on.

"You're ill-natured and your jealousy is wasted. James is going to marry my little Russian cousin eventually, isn't he, Peter?"

"So you say. He doesn't know about it yet. But he certainly seems to have fixed the shop up for them. Perhaps that is a sign of love."

"Are you talking about that wisp of attraction, Tamara what's her name?"

"Yes. She and her father have opened a little photography shop in Ballfield. They live over there. On father's nerves. A relation died, and left him some money, so he settled some of it on Tamara, to get rid of them. He lives in London most of the time, at his Club. Our cottage is waiting for us. But we don't return."

"There we are. Flat Number Five."

"It's lovely, Mike. Within sight of the sea."

"You've got to change. I'll be back!"

He had gone. Having explored it, they stood in the charming hall of their temporary home.

"I clean forgot to ask Rowdon know where we are," said Peter. "And I haven't any black silk socks."

"I'd have cabled and gone shopping for you!"

"I'm not blaming you. I said I'd do most jobs myself."

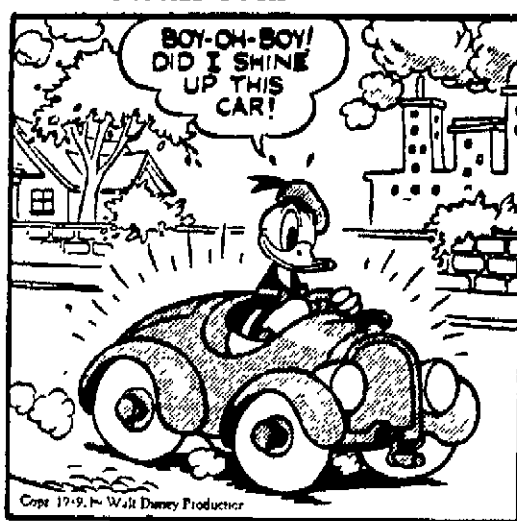

She went to the telephone. Putting down the receiver, she told him, smiling, "The operator asked me the main store to send a pair, size nine, to Mike's apartment. They couldn't send out as far as this. You can cable over Mike's phone."

He had thought that he could get on without her!

LIL ABNER

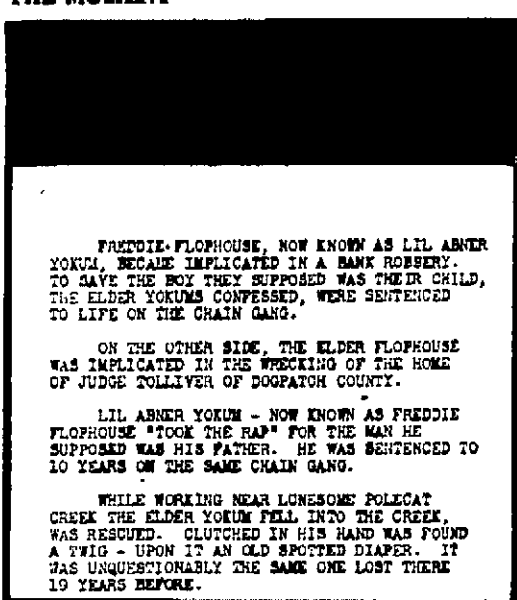

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL
TO THE GOVERNOR
YOUR EXCELLENCY:
THESE ARE MY FINDINGS IN THE YOKUM FLOPHOUSE CASE.
19 YEARS AGO, IN DOGPATCH COUNTY, TWO BROTHERS, LIL ABNER YOKUM AND FREDDIE YOKUM, WERE BORN. LIL ABNER WAS THE ELDER, AND FREDDIE THE YOUNGER. THEY WERE BOTH ORPHANS, AND WERE REARED BY AN OLD COUPLE, THE YOKUMS, WHO LIVED IN DOGPATCH COUNTY. LIL ABNER WAS A BRIGHT, CAPABLE YOUNG MAN, WHO WAS WELL KNOWN IN THE COMMUNITY. FREDDIE, ON THE OTHER HAND, WAS A LAZY, UNRELIABLE YOUNG MAN, WHO WAS WELL KNOWN IN THE COMMUNITY AS A TRICKSTER. LIL ABNER WAS A BRIGHT, CAPABLE YOUNG MAN, WHO WAS WELL KNOWN IN THE COMMUNITY. FREDDIE, ON THE OTHER HAND, WAS A LAZY, UNRELIABLE YOUNG MAN, WHO WAS WELL KNOWN IN THE COMMUNITY AS A TRICKSTER.

ALL'S WELL FOR THE MOMENT

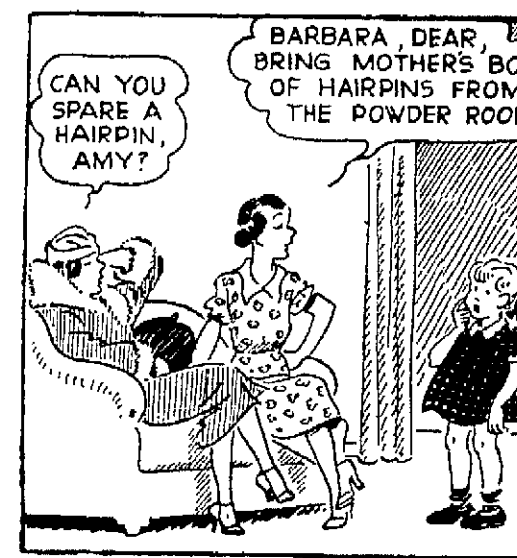

BABY WAS WHICH UNTIL THEY PULLED THE OTHER ONE OUT.
THE OTHER WORK WHITE DIAPERS. THIS, APPARENTLY PROVED THAT HE LIL ABNER, AND THAT THE CHILD KNEW HIS DIAPERS WAS FREDDIE FLOPHOUSE.
BOTH PARENTS THEN TOOK THEIR RESPECTIVE BABIES HOME. THE FLOPHOUSES MOVED TO THE CITY.
19 YEARS LATER, RETURNING TO DOGPATCH FOR A VISIT, THE FLOPHOUSES AND THE YOKUMS REMEMBERING OVER THE AFORESAID INCIDENT, LUCIFER YOKUM PRODUCED THE OLD WHITE DIAPERS.
UPON HOLDING IT AGAINST A BRIGHT LAMP LIGHT IT WAS DISCOVERED THAT THE SUPPOSEDLY WHITE DIAPERS HAD SPOTS IN THEM. SPOTS WHICH HAD VANISHED OUT.
THEREFORE THE PARENTS CONCLUDED THAT 19 YEARS BEFORE, EACH HAD TAKEN THE WRONG BABY.
THEY EXCHANGED CHILDREN.

By AL CAPP.

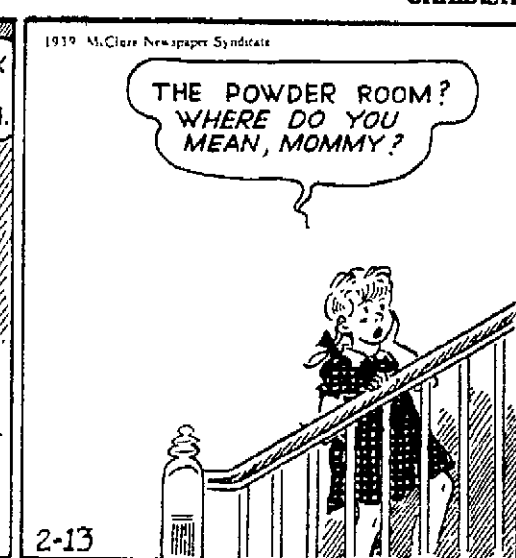

THE MERCHANT WHO SOLD BOTH DIAPERS TO THE PARENTS WAS CONTACTED. HE REVEALED THAT THE SUPPOSEDLY WHITE DIAPERS WERE WHITE, BUT SPOTTED - WITH THE SPOTS BLEACHED OUT. THIS WAS REVEALED ONLY WHEN THE CLOTH WAS HELD AGAINST THE STRONG LIGHT.
THIS PROVED CONCLUSIVELY THAT NO MISTAKE HAD BEEN MADE, THAT THE ORIGINAL LIL ABNER WAS THE REAL ONE, ETC.
THE YOKUMS HAVE MADE A CLEAN BREAST OF THE AFFAIR. THE FLOPHOUSES HAVE BEEN APPREHENDED AND, AFTER LONG GRILLING, CONFESSED.
I STRONGLY URGE AN IMMEDIATE AND COMPLETE PARDON FOR THE YOKUM FAMILY.
RESPECTFULLY,
MAYNARD T. CONNOR
ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Saugerties, Feb. 13—A meeting of the Saugerties Board of Education was held at the high school with President Joseph Frankel presiding. Mrs. Floyd B. Garrison, who has been a member of the board for the past number of years submitted her resignation which was accepted with regret. Mrs. John Lowther, a former teacher in the high school, was elected to fill the vacancy which she accepted and is now a duly qualified member. An unanimous vote was cast for the reelection of Grant D. Morse as superintendent of the schools for 1939-40 school year. The board of education has decided to install an industrial arts course at the opening of the schools in September and 160 boys in the high school have expressed a desire to enroll in the course. Superintendent Morse has been authorized to secure teachers necessary to fill the vacancies which will occur the next school year. The teachers retiring this year are Mrs. Frances Carpenter, Mrs. Shikha Koto Johnson, Mrs. Dorothy Adams and Miss Adah Potter. Other matters were approved by the board which will effect the local schools and President Joseph Frankel then appointed the standing committees for the school year. The clerk A. F. Saunders reported receipt of a check of $25,532.10 from the county treasurer as portion of state moneys allotted to the Saugerties schools this school year.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Almost every day you read in the papers where charges of murder, after fair and impartial trial, are sustained against some offender of society, and he is executed. If this happens in New York state the convicted is taken to Sing Sing and there put to death in the manner prescribed by law.

Now the legal taking of human life is not a pretty subject, and witnessing such an event is certainly nothing to brag about. But most newspapermen run into assignments like this at times, and when you do you take it in stride the same as a fire or a political rally or anything else.

I think the effect of an experience like this is different from what most people imagine. Especially if your beat includes prison and you witness a number of them. After the first time there usually isn't any impression at all. The man comes into the death chamber at a given time. You note how many seconds transpire before he is strapped in the chair. If he has anything to say you quote him. You always tell how many seconds elapse from the time he enters the cell to when the prison doctor officially declares "this man is dead."

OF COURSE, if the man is a headline-hunter who has evoked nationwide interest the story is played up. But otherwise it is a few paragraphs.

Sometimes I read where the official witnesses faint or fall to the floor—a veteran newspaperman. I mean—and I have read also of sentimental chair-side confessions that had the witnesses in tears.

I never saw anything like that. I am not proud of the fact that I have seen perhaps a dozen executions, but then neither am I ashamed of it, because those experiences fell within the routine of early training in a mid-western state, and I took them as I did state fairs and football games.

BUT I never saw a newspaperman faint. I never heard any sobbing chair-side confessions that had me and my colleagues in tears. I rarely experienced any emotion whatever, except that first time, and then the "relief" was so great when it was over that I couldn't believe it. I went around for days saying to myself, "Is that all there is to it? I took them as I did state fairs and football games."

As a matter of fact, I can recall the names of only two of the men whose executions I witnessed. The first one I will always remember, of course, because for days before the execution I went around, as any raw cub would, thinking of little else. The other was a celebrated professor, internationally known.

Dancing Classes Popular

The dancing classes in the parish house of the Church of the Holy Cross, sponsored each week by the Girls' Friendly Society, have proven to be popular and successful and will continue each Monday night. Classes start at 9:15 o'clock with Paul Yocan as the instructor.

Silver Tea at Church

Circle No. 1 of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will sponsor a silver tea Tuesday afternoon from 2:30 until 5 o'clock in the church parlors. Mrs. Martha Lang and Mrs. George Wilson will preside at the tea table. Mrs. Clarence Rowland is in charge of the arrangements.

College Club to Dine

The February meeting of the Kingston College Women's Club will be held in the form of a banquet and dance Tuesday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Following the dinner the members and their guests will be addressed by Captain Gordon Herriot of the New York Herald Tribune and after the address Paul Zucca's orchestra will play for dancing. The members of the committee arranging the dance are Miss Florence Ball, chairman, Miss Marian Hall, Mrs. Theodore G. Peck, Mrs. Bernard Walp, Mrs. James Betts, Mrs. John Finerty, Miss Mary J. Murphy, Miss Madelyn Pettit, Miss Catherine McCommons, Mrs. Mortimer B. Downer and Miss Margaret Mullen. Miss Irene Kinkade, Miss Laura Bailey and Mrs. Paul Perlman, members of the program committee, also assisted in the arrangements.

Former Residents Celebrate

Mr. and Mrs. Leon L. Jaminet of Poughkeepsie, observed their 25th wedding anniversary Saturday at their home. They were married February 11, 1914, by the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seelye in the Fair Street Reformed Church, this city. Mrs. Jaminet is the former Miss Loretta Terpening of this city. In honor of the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Jaminet entertained at dinner Saturday evening in the Gold Room of the Nelson House for a group of their friends. Covers were laid for more than 50. Included among the guests were their two daughters, Miss Elton, an alumna of Mt. Holyoke College, and Miss Marjorie, senior at Wellesley College. Decorations were in keeping with the occasion. A social evening followed the dinner.

Twentieth Century Party

Twentieth Century Club will hold a Valentine party this evening at the home of Mrs. J. C. Fraser, 83 Johnston avenue. The business meeting has been called for 7:30 o'clock.

Hostess at Cards

Mrs. Theodore Peck is entertaining at cards this afternoon at her home in Hurley in honor of her house guest, Miss Adele Hawkes of New York city. The guests are Miss Elizabeth Terry, Mrs. Doris Monroe, Miss Mary Hubbard, Miss Agnes Smith, Miss Florence Baltz, Mrs. Charles Vogel and Miss Ora Kappes of New York city.

Married Women Turn to Writing

Freeman Photo

Trying their skill at short story writing, the Married Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. held a contest last week to determine the most successful in the group. From 13 entries, three were given prizes and two were given honorable mention. Above is Mrs. James Snyder, left, receiving the first prize from Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, chairman of the program. Seated is Mrs. Kenneth Kelley, who received the second prize. Other awards were made to Mrs. Raymond Quackenbush, third prize and Mrs. Clyde Hutton and Mrs. Stanley Hankinson, honorable mentions.

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

Skating costumes are splashed with color gay as a tanager's wing. Shoulder straps and hem of this brief blue flannel skirt are faced with flannel plaid in red, navy and white, and the white wool sweater is topped with an open-crowned scarlet wool cap.

Suppers-Food Sales

The Ladies' Aid Society of Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Home streets, will hold its sixth annual German dinner Tuesday, February 21. This affair, while a comparatively recent feature, considering the venerable age of the society, is becoming more popular each year with the public. The committee in charge this year, with Mrs. Charles Henninger as chairman, again promises the usual fast service and complete satisfaction. Lovers of old-fashioned German cooking will not want to miss this dinner.

15-Piece Orchestra at Community Dance Tonight

The regular Monday night community dance will be held at the municipal auditorium tonight. Music will be furnished by Jules Tellier and his 15-piece orchestra.

These dances are held under the auspices of the building committee of the common council, with a nominal charge for admission. Dancing is from 9 to 12.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Those picturesque street merchants, the pushcart peddlers, are disappearing rapidly under the La Guardia administration. The first to go were those on upper Park avenue between One Hundred and Sixteenth streets. They were put in a city-built structure under the railroad tracks which are elevated at that point. More recently, Paddy's market on Ninth avenue from Fortieth street on down to Thirty-fourth, was put out of business. The city made no provision for those pushcart men but a number banded together and rented a vacant lot just on Ninth avenue and have their carts there. The latest blow—or improvement—has come to the lower East Side which is the real stronghold of the pushcart industry. First avenue pushcart men have been put in stalls, in a market, built by the city at a cost of $225,000, at First avenue and Tenth street.

The First avenue pushcart market was one of the sights of the city. It extended from First to Fourteenth streets in a solid line. Almost everything from fresh vegetables to second-hand caps and from kitchenware to women's dresses, could be bought from the carts. Prices were astonishingly low due to a minimum overhead and keen competition, mostly the latter. For a few cents, enough vegetables for a family dinner could be bought, and 50 cents would buy a pair of used but still serviceable shoes. Despite the low prices, most sales were made only after more or less bargaining. Customers were mostly transient dwellers and to transient dwellers, pennies are important. They are also important to the pushcart men also. Some are worrying for fear their profits won't be sufficient to pay $4.25 a week rent to the city.

Many of the pushcart men welcomed the new market.

Standing for hours in the street in all kinds of weather is not exactly pleasant. Nor does it improve the health. The weather does stocks no good either. Most important, there are days when it is impossible to do business outdoors. Then, too, there is something else. A pushcart man is a peddler. If he's in a market, he's a merchant.

On a recent Monday, the subway lines of the city carried a total of about 5,760,000 passengers. By no means does that represent the total travel within the city on that particular day. In addition, there were 618,000 passengers on the elevated lines and hundreds of thousands who went here and there in buses, street cars, taxicabs and private conveyances. New York is an uneasy, ever moving city. Transportation, even though it may not be beyond the limits of the city and with a five-cent fare, cost subway riders alone $288,000 on that day. And it wasn't a record either.

Weather plays an important part in the number of nickels that go into subway turnstiles. The worse the weather, the more nickels. On fair days, surface lines gain in volume of passengers as fewer persons go underground. Surface transportation may be slower but it is out in the open air. Also there is less congestion. But subway take passengers to wherever they wish to go, and so when the skies are dark and the streets are slippery, millions pour in and out of the tubes.

Central park horseback riders are not entirely deterred by weather. On a recent stormy day, when the streets were all but blocked, I noted a number of riders following the bridge path in the park. Most were attired in the conventional habits, stiff hat and all. One young woman, however, had prepared herself for a cold canter. Not only did she have a Mackinaw jacket on over her habit but she wore ear muffs as well. Noted also on that same day, a number of walkers making the turn around the reservoir. Some metropolitan are hardy.

Scholars Determine

First Use of 'Cooler'

CHICAGO—Scholars preparing a new dictionary gave a pedigree to the term "cooler" which, of course, means the clink, the pokie, the hoosegow or maybe just plain jail.

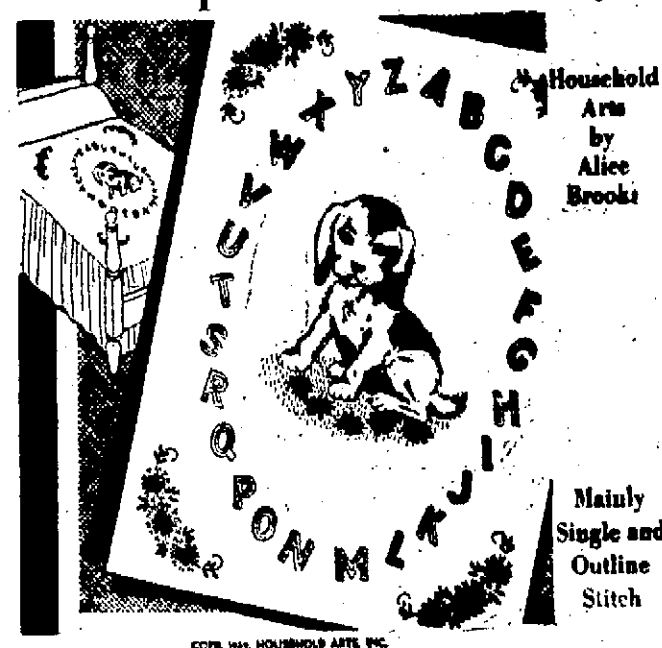

University of Chicago experts who have another section of the New American English Dictionary in page proofs said they traced "cooler" as a slang term for jail "way back to 1864 when a middle western newspaper said one day:

"Two minor boys were arrested on the charge of drunkenness, lodged in the cooler over night and then fined $5 in the morning."

Exchanges Close

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange, Curb Exchange, Cotton Exchange, Chicago Board of Trade and most principal security and commodity markets throughout the country were closed today in observance of a Lincoln's birthday holiday. All European and Canadian markets were open.

Clinton Avenue Men's Club Show Here on March 7, 8

The Clinton Avenue Men's Club will present its seventh annual minstrel show March 7-8. This year's show promises to surpass all previous performances. In addition to a snappy line of jokes and comedy songs, they will present a selection of ballads familiar to both young and old.

The chorus will be composed of a mixed double quartet of eight young men and ladies. The ballad soloists, led by Donald Weeks, will feature such popular soloists as Raymond DuBois, Milton Scheib, Walter Bellefonte, Pa., Feb. 13 (AP)—Nine hundred students fled coastless today as fire destroyed the four-story brick high school building here.

Kingston Hockey Club Loses To St. Nicks of Bear Mountain

Kingston's improved but still shaky hockey club met with another setback yesterday afternoon at Strubel's Garden where not a too large throng of shivering fans saw the St. Nicks of Bear Mountain rap four pucks past Goalie Mario Goffredi. The final score was 4 to 2.

Although dropping its third straight tussle against the better sextets of the Hudson valley region, the Doylemen proved the point that they are to be watched every minute. Paced by Sam Doyle himself, the locals shot in to the Saints with every bit of energy possible. And when the game ended the winners surely knew that they had met a troublesome foe.

The Saints, too, had a dangerous club. Freddie Sage and Lanny McQuade teamed up on several occasions and gave Goffredi in the cage plenty of anxious moments. Left without the proper defense at times, Mario slaved off rallies with unbelievable saves. In all the Kingston goalies blocked 21 score-bound socks while Bill Innis defeated 15.

It wasn't until the 5:00 minute mark of the first session that the Saints started to explode. Coming off the right side boards Lanny McQuade soloed in on Goffredi. About five feet out the St. Nick center plastered the rubber ankle high into the netting. Two minutes later Freddie Sage took the puck in back of his own net, twisted a rink-wide to Spencer. Spencer dished the puck in front of him all the way down the blue line and then at Kingston's blue line, passed to Sage.

Quickly and with a powerful slam, Sage lifted the puck into the cage. The Kingston players swarmed up to referee Ray Fuller on the point that the puck had not passed the crease. The official, however, allowed the score after some lengthy bickering.

Sammy Doyle put Kingston back into the game at the half way mark in a lone dash up the rink. After a face-off at center ice Sam stole the puck from Russell and waded in on Goalie Innis. In one powerful thrust, Doyle back-handed the oval over the cage tender who had been teined out by a rush on the part of Benjamin and Jones. The score came at 10:00.

Shifting back to the defensive play at the start of the second stanza, Kingston awaited the

Planthaber and Tellier Victors In Tournament

Nick Kaslich, one of Kingston's leading baseball fans who during the major leagues' season generally manages to get down to the big city to see all the double-headers, staged a double-header of his own yesterday in the city billiard tournament.

At 2:30 p. m. Julius Tellier met and defeated Meine Russell 100 to 83 in one of the finest played matches to date. Both men were definitely on and some excellent position play and shot making featured the game. Tellier had a run of 24 while Russell had 27 for his best run which was stopped when a ball stroked just a bit too hard jumped the table.

At 5 o'clock Fred Planthaber, starting with a run of 20, defeated Ed Benoit 100 to 70. Planthaber built up a commanding lead in the first part of the game but Benoit made a fair comeback to make the score a little closer. Benoit's best run was 12.

Emerick Pineroos Chalk Up Record

Emerick's pin boys in a special match with the setter-uppers from Greco's Ellenville recreation alleys. Saturday, hit what they believe to be a new high record in this city for pin boy reglers by posting games of 945, 906, 959 for a grand total of 2810.

The Emerick Pineroos would like to challenge the following teams from the Purple Division of the Silver Palace League—Central Lunch, Millards or Empire Liquor.

Dartball Games
Members of the dartball team of the Fair Street Men's Club will be entertained Wednesday evening of this week by the Men's Club of Trinity Lutheran Church and on Friday evening by the Port Ewen Men's Club. President Sweeney of the Fair Street Club requests all members to endeavor to attend.

While a group of spectators huddled in the warmest of winter wearing apparel, the members of the Polar Bear and Snow Bird Clubs dove into the icy waters of Williams Lake Saturday afternoon for their annual dip. A few members of the Snow Bird Club, an organization of girls, may be seen sunning themselves on the ice by the water's edge.

Rosendale Ski Contestants

The Auchmoedy slopes on the Rosendale-High Falls road were the scene of great activity Saturday afternoon as the Telemark Ski Club held its first competitive meet of the season. It was about 2 o'clock before the representatives of several clubs lined up to await the signal from the starter's gun. The cross-country skiers are left to right: Sigmund Goyll, Nonsenian Club; Egil Kornbrekke of Telemark Club; Torsten Norstrom of the Telemark Club, who came from York, Pennsylvania, to enter the race; Harold Scheldrup, Telemark; Ingolf Helgesen, Telemark; K. E. Wallenius, Telemark; Peter Wick, Salisbury Outing Club; Stain Gerdersen, Staten Island Ski Club; Carl Bergesen, (the winner) Telemark; Gus Cornell, Telemark; Toni Zage, Norsemen Club; Harry Wesnice, Telemark; Thomas Andreassen, Telemark and Annar Swee, judge and chief timekeeper.

It is unfortunate that the finish was ruined by a forfeit. The Comforter forfeited three games to Trinity Lutheran which threw the chances of the other clubs all up in smoke as it automatically gave Trinity Lutheran a one-game lead for second place.

This means now that the play-off for the championship will be between Trinity Lutheran in second place and Port Ewen, in first place. This play-off will take place at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church on Friday night February 24. It will be preceded by the usual dinner.

In Triple Coffin

Tomorrow at 4 p. m. the body of the Pontiff will be taken from the open bier, placed in a triple coffin and entombed in a crypt of the great basilica where Pius will lie among scores of past Popes, Kings and Prelates.

The first coffin of cypress with a great cross of walnut on its lid, the second of lead and the third of elm. At the feet of the Pontiff will be placed a brass tube containing a script of the eulogy recited at the burial ceremony and medals in gold, silver and bronze coined during his pontificate.

Cardinals, bishops, the papal household and diplomats will be present at the ceremony in which the body will be placed in the coffin.

Achille Cardinal Lehner arrived from France and Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber from Germany Sunday. Most of the Italian cardinals were here, and others, including the American prelates, were enroute.

Upon the arrival of the Americans depended the start of the election conclave which Vatican prelates said could be not earlier than February 26 or later than March 1.

Speculation increased on the choice of a successor and some diplomats thought there existed the possibility of a long conclave. Italians have been most prominently mentioned but should a deadlock develop among them, church informants said a compromise might result—election of one of the older cardinals more isolated than his younger colleagues from present world events.

This was done in 1878 with the election of Pope Leo XIII.

Should a deadlock lead to a similar choice this time, it was possible the Cardinals might choose the dean of their college, 87-year-old Gennaro Cardinal Magliani Di Belmonte who was considered for the papacy after the death of Pius X and Benedict XV. It developed today that a cardinal for the first time likely would come to Rome for election of a Pontiff by airplane, Manuel Cardinal Cerejola, Patriarch of Lisbon, sent word he would leave by plane February 16.

There was the possibility that Cardinal O'Connell of Boston and the two South American cardinals, Copello and Silveira, might fly also from Gibraltar which they will reach by ship shortly before the conclave is due to start.

There are now 62 cardinals but whether all will reach Rome for the conclave has not been determined.

Prince Chigi, whose meeting with the cardinals was primarily to discuss details, will have charge of all civil arrangements for the conclave.

The election deliberations continue until one candidate receives a two-thirds majority.

Luncheon Planned By Youth Aliyah

Mrs. Ethel Hazeltine, an attorney of Poughkeepsie, will be guest speaker at a luncheon to be given for subscribers to the Youth Aliyah movement here, it was announced today. The luncheon will be given February 18 at 1 o'clock in the vestry of the Ahavath Israel Temple.

Support of the movement is asked locally in view of the fact that it has been considered one of the most important steps taken for the aid of young Jewish refugees. Words to this effect were said recently by former President Herbert Hoover, who is a noted authority on refugee work.

The mission work is conducted by Hadassah and the organization has dedicated itself to the purpose of rescuing and rehabilitating those who were driven from their native lands.

Mrs. Frank Spodick, who is chairman for the Kingston unit, asks the support of local people to this cause and announces that there is still opportunity to make reservations for the luncheon.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL SAILS

William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, Mass., dean of American hierarchy, is shown at Nassau, Bahamas, as he boarded the S. S. Britannic for New York en route to Rome to take part in election of a new Pope. The ill and deeply-affected cardinal was being helped up the gangplank when this picture was taken. Twice before the cardinal rushed to Rome only to arrive after the election.

EN ROUTE TO ROME

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia sailed from New York city on the Italian liner Rex for Italy to take part in election of a new Pope. He is shown in his stateroom aboard ship shortly before sailing time. George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago accompanied him.

CARDINAL SAILS

George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago presents his ring to be kissed by a seaman as he boards the Italian liner Rex in New York to sail for Rome to take part in election of a Pope to succeed Pope Pius XI. According to the cardinal to his stateroom is Capt. Arrilio Frugone, commander of the Rex. Sailing with the Chicago cardinal was Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia.

Commodity Day Attracts Crowd

Saturday was the day for the monthly distribution of federal surplus commodities at the home of Charles Lay, welfare officer for the town of Ulster, and as early as 8 o'clock that morning a number of people were on hand to receive their allotment of these supplies. By the time the hour set for distribution arrived the crowd had increased to such proportions and the competition to be "first in line" was so keen that Mr. Lay and his helpers found it almost impossible to make any headway at all.

A request was sent to Sheriff Molyneux for an officer to assist in keeping order, and Deputy Sheriff Ray Wiene was sent. The deputy says that he found a scene of confusion, with some 500 people crowding about the rear door of the house, the jam being such that those who did get in and were given their supplies were unable to get out.

After working for nearly half an hour the officer succeeded in getting the claimants into line and in some kind of order. He remained until 2 o'clock, at which time he says there were still 50 or 75 people waiting to be served.

Wiene said that apparently most of the people came in their own cars or rode with friends, but that many had to walk. Some of them came a considerable distance and one man said that he had a walk of 10 miles to his home, carrying a feed bag loaded with supplies.

Among federal surplus commodities given out were butter, flour, corn meal, sugar, rice and canned goods. Men, women and children were among those applying for these relief goods. Some of the women said that they had eight or ten persons in their families.

Smallest Week's Volume in Stocks Since August 20

Concluding the smallest week's volume on the Stock Exchange since the week ending August 20, transactions during the two-hour session Saturday totaled only 322,970 shares, which is also the smallest day since August 20.

Prices rose moderately in what little trading there was, but a few issues being at all active. Corporate bonds were irregular, governments firm.

Steel operations in the Pittsburgh and Chicago districts are scheduled for the current week.

Cotton futures were down one to eight points Saturday and 11 to 15 points losses were shown for the week. Wheat was seven-eighths to a cent lower at the end of the week and during the same time corn prices dropped 14 to two cents a bushel. The wool market was strong with an estimated movement of 4,000,000 pounds at Boston.

All banks and all security and commodity markets in New York are closed today on account of the holiday, the Canadian and European markets are open as usual and the New Orleans Cotton Exchange is open.

General Motors net profit of around $64,000,000 in the final quarter of 1938, when sales totaled 512,000 compares with a net of $11,500,000 in the last quarter of 1937, when sales were 522,500.

The ICG has postponed to March 27 the date for the beginning of hearings in the N. Y., New Haven & Hartford Railroad reorganization proceedings.

S. S. Kresge Co. and subsidiaries reported net profit for 1938 of $8,997,051, equal to $1.63 a share on 5,517,881 shares of common, including 27,960 held in the treasury. Compares with net of $10,112,513, of $1.94 a share in 1937.

United States Tobacco Co. had net of $3,358,135 in 1938, equal after dividends on seven per cent preferred to $1.74 on common.

Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., shows net loss of $1,485,901 last year, as against net profit in 1937 of $1,242,084.

Distributors report that orders for oil burners during the first six weeks of 1939 are about ten per cent ahead of the same period in 1938. There was a sales dip last year of 35 per cent, one of the main factors being increased competition from anthracite stockers.

Pennington Studio Has Display of Lincolniana

A rare small photograph of Abraham Lincoln, bearing his autograph, is one of the features of a display of Lincolniana being shown in the window of the Pennington Studio at 72 Main street. Another prominent item in the display is a large hand-tinted engraving of the martyred president and his family.

There is also a memorial silk ribbon, bearing Lincoln's picture and the following inscription: "A nation mourns Abraham Lincoln. 12 Pluribus Unum. The Union must and shall be preserved. Born February 12, 1809; died April 15, 1865."

Compensation Hearings

Referee F. A. Hoyt is scheduled to hold compensation law hearings at the court house, Kingston, Monday and Tuesday, February 20 and 21 and Thursday and Friday, February 23 and 24.

Nott Denies Hines Motion

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., denied a defense motion today for dismissal of the case against James J. Hines, political leader now being tried a second time on conspiracy charges that he used his influence to abet the $20,000,000 lottery racket operated by the late Arthur (Dutch) Schultz) Flegenheimer.

Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief of defense counsel, had argued in the absence of the jury for dismissal of the one conspiracy and 12 felony counts against Hines.

Stryker declared the conspiracy count to come within the two-year statutory limitation for misdemeanors, and said the indictment was invalid. The first Hines indictment, he said, was returned May 26, 1938, and added that District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had not charged any overt act after May 26, 1938.

Judge Nott said he would leave it to the jury to decide whether the conspiracy, in fact, was outlawed by the statute of limitations.

Woman Suffers Broken Hip In Fall at Intersection

The condition of Mrs. Elizabeth Perry of 59 Henry street, an employee of Everett & Treadwell who suffered a fractured hip when she fell at Clinton avenue and St. James street Saturday morning, was reported fair this morning.

Alderman Herbert Wolff, who saw Mrs. Perry as she fell took her to her home in his car. Later the alderman reported the accident at police headquarters. Mrs. Perry was removed from her home to the Kingston Hospital, when it was discovered that her injury was serious enough to require treatment there.
